Solar Eclipse

August 21, 2017. This is the first total eclipse of the Sun visible from the contiguous United States (excluding Alaska and Hawaii) since February 26, 1979. The last time a total eclipse was visible from coast to coast was on June 8, 1918. “Because of the path, the time of year, occurring on a Monday and access to millions of people, this will be the most viewed eclipse ever,” said Tom Sheridan, President of LeaderboardKing. “People will be outside to view the event. So why not enjoy a relaxing round of golf at the same time and participate in a large live scoring golf event with your fellow Americans during the most spectacular astronomical event of our lifetimes”.

The command center for the event will be based in Santee, South Carolina as this is one of the final cities in the zone of totality before the eclipse exits the U.S. The zone of totality is where the full eclipse will be visible for over 2 minutes. This is expected to occur in Santee, SC at approximately 2:43pm EST and last for 2 minutes and 34 seconds.
